Welcome Address From the President of ISUCRS

On behalf of the International Society of University Colon and Rectal Surgeons (ISUCRS), it is my great honour and pleasure to extend a warm welcome to all participants, faculty, and esteemed guests to this exceptional event.

ISUCRS has a long and proud tradition of uniting leaders in colorectal surgery from across the globe to share knowledge, advance clinical practice, and foster collaboration in education and research. Our Society thrives on the diverse expertise, innovation, and dedicated spirit of its members – clinicians, researchers, trainees and allied health professionals who together seek to improve patient care in all aspects of colon and rectal disease.

In today's rapidly evolving surgical landscape, international dialogue and interdisciplinary cooperation are more important than ever. This meeting embodies that spirit, bringing together world-renowned educators and emerging leaders to discuss the latest evidence, refine surgical techniques, and explore future directions in colorectal practice.

I encourage you to engage fully with the scientific programme, to challenge established thinking, and to build meaningful connections that will endure beyond this meeting. It is through shared learning and collective passion that we will continue to elevate the standards of care for patients worldwide.

Thank you for your commitment to excellence in colorectal surgery, and I welcome you to what promises to be an inspiring and rewarding experience in Malaysia in July 2026.

Warm regards,

Woo Yong Lee, MD, PhD
President, ISUCRS
